About the Author

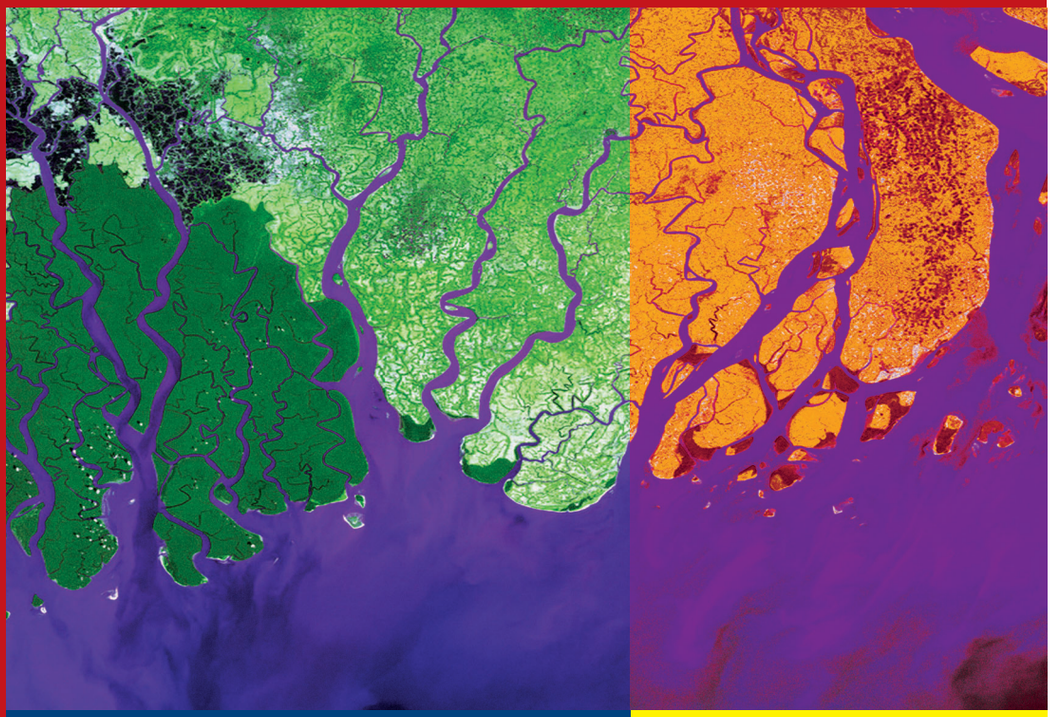

Rayappa A. Kasi, a Catholic priest from the Diocese of Vellore, a student of Cosmology and Ontology, interweaves the different streams of reasoning to produce a meticulously researched, closely argued and thought-provoking work. He is known to the readers through his previous best selling book: Earth – The Lost Paradise of Happiness. This book, tracing the history of Global Warming, delves into environmental questions like: How does Greenhouse Effect work? What does science have to say about Climate Change? This book is an astonishing blend of the scientific and the social, the philosophical and the physical, the mystical and the material. The author is very optimistic and he thinks that it is possible even now, although late, to salvage this planet and make it a habitable place for all living beings. This "message of hope", recently, the author is passionately carrying, to the younger generations around the world.
