About the Author

Spanning twenty eight Years as Catholic priest, Rayappa A. Kasi has written four books on ecology and environment. Born in A. Kattupadi—his beautiful native village near Vellore has enabled him passionate enough to form a tight relationship with nature. Profound, compassionate, and sure to arouse curiosity, "Hydrosphere-The Giver of Life" sharpens our images of the Hydrosphere. Much of his research is focused on water conservation, and the impact of human induced Climate Change on Hydrosphere. The Year of Priests gave the author a moment to focus his attention patiently, thoroughly on Earth's systems, especially Hydrosphere. Author feels the human activity is the cause for devastation of Hydrosphere. Disregard for nature permeates disconnection from nature, because we experience the self as separate from the Earth. We are in disharmony with nature and Earth. We are in disharmony with the Earth because we are in disharmony with ourselves. We need to be connected again. "If You Want to Cultivate Peace, Protect Creation," wrote Pope Benedict XVI. As a Catholic priest, assuming that religion is a powerful tool, the author makes an appeal to his brother priests around the world to save Hydrosphere and its resources. You save water and definitely you save life.

A book of remarkable clarity about the water that shapes us all, this book is really captivating and illuminates every aspect of Hydrosphere. Kasi's Seven Wonders of Hydrosphere and Seven Mega Disasters of Hydrosphere make this book something original and useful. Rayappa A. Kasi was my student in St. Paul's Seminary, Trichy, and I'm proud of him. Fr. Raja SJ. Bible Scholar.

This book takes a fantastic look at our pale blue dot—a water world. A unique and important book ... it reads like a fine memoir—warm, reflective, humble, with timely injections of mystery and wry wit. Rayappa A. Kasi's Ten Commandments of Hydrosphere will attract the younger audience. Fr. John Samala, SDB, Ethiopia.

This book is an extraordinary work. Rayappa A. Kasi completely revolutionizes the standard view of the structure and function of Hydrosphere. Extremely well written and accessible to anyone interested in Earth and its Systems. Fr. Paul MacDonald, Archdiocese of Boston, USA.
